

EIGHTH SOUTH STREET

WEST TEMPLE STREET

1. The grocery store of J.G. Morrison. Mr. Morrison and son murdered. Surviving Son testified the two intruders shouted "We have got you now."
2. Home of Mrs. Vera Hansen. Heard gunshots - saw a man leaving the store. Thought she heard the man say "oh Bob." Two men were waiting for him at the intersection.
3. Home of Nellie Mahan. Saw man wearing dark coat and soft hat run from the store. Man reportedly said "I'm shot." Man ran to alley in back of her house.
4. W.H. Williams found waiting near the grocery store and was arrested. A bloody handkerchief was found in his pocket. Claimed he was staying at Salvation Army House. Eventually released by the police.
5. Perry Morrison, eldest son of the slain man. Found some blood in alley near store.
6. Police followed a zigzag trail of blood back and forth in an alley near the store.
7. Another blood trail found on 1st West Street that led to railroad tracks near 10th South Street.
8. Arthur Gardner located another blood trail. Police followed it to Oregon Short Line Railroad tracks at 12th South Street. Found what appeared to be a bloody hand mark in the snow.
9. Followed blood to Denver and Rio Grande railroad yard. Discovered the charred coals of a recent fire. Besides coals, Patrolman Crosby found two empty 38-caliber revolver cartridges, one of which was apparently bloodstained.
10. A streetcar conductor, J.R. Usher, reported that a suspicious-looking man had boarded his streetcar at tenth south at 11:26 the night of the murders. The man wore a dark suit and a black hat.
11. Man left streetcar. Later identified from a police photograph by Usher as Frank Z. Wilson (ex-convict that had been arrested by Morrison).
12. Peter Rhengren claimed he saw a man lying in a ditch at eighth west and eighth south at about 11:30 Saturday night. When he offered to help, he said, the man got out of the ditch and ran to an approaching streetcar.
13. Mrs. Phoebe Seeley, while coming home from the Empress theatre, saw two men in a back street in the vicinity of the Morrison store. One of them had sharp features and light bushy hair.
14. Office of Dr. Frank M. McHugh. Treated Joe Hill at 11:30 pm, the night of the murders.
15. The Corner of 800 South and West Temple [a close-up].